Digital self-check - How secure is it at the workplace?

The Social Insurance for Agriculture, Forestry and Horticulture (SVLFG) offers a digital self-check that can be used to find out in 30 minutes what the health and safety situation is like on the farm.

The self-check is done via a web app that can be downloaded free of charge from the Internet both from the SVLFG at www.svfgcheck.de and from the International Social Security Association (ISSA) at <https://safety-work.org/toolbox/analyseinstrumente.html>.

Suitable for all farms

In several topic areas, the self-check evaluates the safety and health situation precisely for each company and provides tips for better workplace design. It can also be used by small and medium-sized companies in particular to find out how important occupational safety and health is in the corporate culture and to what extent it is already integrated into everyday working life.

What can be improved?

The web app also suggests supporting offers from the SVLFG that should lead to improvements in the company. The self-check can be performed anytime and anywhere on a smartphone or tablet - including via this QR code:
